POLITICAL NEWS.

w York Republican Convention Held To-Day.

NATOR ALLISON'S SPEECH.

it Has the Inside Track For the New York Governor Nomination—Words of Sense From Kansas Republicans—Alliance Epidemic.

ster, N. Y., Sept. 8.—At noon the ors of the Powers hotel were filled with gates all eager for the convention to get work. The general run of the talk was t Fassett would be chosen to head the ket, with Wadsworth as second man if he [illegible] or Becker and Einstein. John Vrooman is reported to have said that he accept the nomination for secretary of te. The only one named thus far for mptroller is Einstein.

Mr. Platt's headquarters are in Rooms 122 124 of the Powers hotel. There has n a steady stream of callers all morning. definitely announced that the temporary irman will be W. W. Goodrick of Brooklyn. Ex-Senator Gibbs, whose opposition to leadership of Thomas C. Platt has made one of the best known Republicans in state said to a reporter:

"I am for Fassett because he is a good man I can be elected. The party is united and ermined to win. Mr. Platt is unquestionably the leader of his party. I say that m experience. I think Mr. Platt's only ect is to secure the nomination of a that will succeed at the polls."

he fact more than any other challenges nment among the men who are here to end the state convention of the Republicans which will be called to order to-morrow noon. That fact is the cordial unanimity he friends of Hon. Thomas C. Platt and se of Warner Miller. The line of partisan isions seems to have faded away, or to be ted out.

Investigation led to this apparent condition of affairs. Mr. Platt had conscientiously advocated the candidacy of Andrew White. It might have been that he would [illegible] ense, but between a candidacy and governorship lay the battle of campaign and election day, well-informed men say they believe a candidate more likely to survive the ney from candidacy to the gubernatorial r A. D. White is the more available, but delegates with Fassett on their lips come k and fast through the day, and he probably will be nominated and will accept.

Allison's Great Speech.

[illegible], Ia., Sept. 8.—Senator W. B. Allison opened the Republican campaign this city this afternoon in a three rs' speech. He received the applause of ense audience that did not seem weary, ugh the speech was of unusual length. tariff, free coinage, the prohibitory and Governor Boies' New York and Chicago corn speeches were the subjects treated y the senator.

THE MCKINLEY BILL.

e McKinley bill, he said, though not fect or in all respects as he would have it, the best tariff law ever enacted by congress and was proving to be a most beneficial law for the people.

PROHIBITION.

e prohibitory law, he said, ed as a result of a non-partisan tion, at which the people ,000 majority that they desired to the experiment of prohibition. The should remain and be respected and enforced, until the people by a similar election anded its repeal. The statement made Governor Boies in his Cherokee speech the attempt to enforce the prohibition had caused more pauperism and brought ery to more homes than would the unrestricted sale of alcoholic beverages the same length of time severely criticized, and the aker thought with a governor giving utterance to such words, there could be little e for any law opposed by any considerable number of the people.

he senator closed with an appeal for nest and united Republican action, which ld result in giving them a victory in the t election by a majority of 25,000.

SENSE AND SOBERNESS.

Republican Reply to Alliance Whining and Vaporing.

opeka, Kan., Sept. 8.—The committee ed at the recent meeting of the Republican league of Kansas to draft an ad s to refute the alleged slanders against state by the advocates of the People's ty, gave its report to the public this rning.

is a carefully prepared statement of the ress made by the state, and is optimistic the extreme. The members of the committee declare that the atrocious crime of be a state of borrowers they will attempt ther to palliate nor deny, and from the form of the Republican league this [illegible]:

"Our debts stand for our investments, and for our losses; they represent our enterprise and not our misfortune; our property, not poverty. They will be paid to the ers in the legal currency of the country, not a coin clipped, not a dollar depreciated."

Reference is made to the enormous crops in Kansas this year, and the estimate made that $101,000,000 will represent net result of the year's work.

"Some of this profit," says the report, "will be added to our permanent capital, but st of it will be employed in liquidating ebtedness."

Referring to the Farmers Alliance the report says:

AN EPIDEMIC OF UNREASON.

"An epidemic of unreason swept over the te last fall and many of our people were ected with the pestilence. Quarantine s been established and rigidly maintained. e disease is not spreading and many of original victims are convalescent. Reports that are entirely trustworthy indicate rapid decline and certain death of the ance as a political party.

"Kansas is marvelous in its history, matchless in its resources, and magnificent in its standards, and the party that maligns state and dishonors itself is already ked with the blight of death."

Proctor Accepts the Senatorship.

Boston, Sept. 8.—Hon. Redfield Proctor sent a letter to Governor Page of Vermont accepting the appointment to the seat vacant by the resignation [illegible] It is dated Washington, [illegible] 3. Mr. ctor returns thanks for the honor [illegible] "It is also gratifying to be [illegible] the sanction of your own judgment [illegible] you believe this selection meets [illegible] of a large majority of the people of rmont."

Mexico's New Tariff.

St. Louis, Sept. 8.—A dispatch from the ty of Mexico gives the following summary of the new Mexican tariff which has just made its appearance in The Diario Official. e of the most notable features of the new is its greater definiteness. The number of classes of merchandise have been increased from 620 to over 900 with a corresponding gain in convenience. The free list embraces coal, coke, wood, pulp, lumber, railway, telegraph, telephone and electric light supplies, barbed wire, iron pipe, slabs, tin, Portland cement, explosives for mining, machinery, boiler and engines, wire cables, ores, cordage, agricultural implements, and a number of other articles.

Precious stones, formerly free, are taxed from $3 to $6 per cent. Sulphuric and muriatic acids, formerly free, will be 3 cents a kilogram. This is the metric weight and is equivalent to 2.2 pounds.

There are no ad valorem duties and unless otherwise specified the following duties are so much per kilogram:

Liquors, wine and beer in glass are unchanged; liquors in wood are reduced from 40 to 30 cents; wine from 12 to 10 cents and beer to 8 cents. Many drugs and chemicals have been reduced, phosphorus from 75 to 50 cents, while matches are increased from $1.25 to $1.50. Common paper for certain purposes is reduced from 10 to 5 cents; brown wrapping paper from 8 to 5 cents; envelopes from 45 to 25 cents; bristol board to 25 cents and pasteboard to 15 cents; playing cards are increased to 16 cents. Wall paper was 30 cents. It is now divided into three classes and will pay 10, 20 and 30 cents according to description. Paper with printed reading documents, monograms, as well as printed tickets of all kinds, will pay $1. Raw cotton is unchanged, as is also cotton cloth. There are some differences in threads and in underwear. There are few changes in linens and some reductions. Silk is practically unchanged. Woolen carpets are lower and there are reductions in woolen cloth, underwear, clothing, gloves and fringes. Grains are not changed. Preserved fruits are increased from 50 to 75 cents. Virginia leaf tobacco from 18 to 25 cents. Crude petroleum from 1 to 2 cents; white, refined, is unchanged. Fixed oils not specified are reduced from 50 to 20 cents and lubricating oils to 5 cents. Common soaps are increased from 18 to 25 cents. Common glass bottles are reduced from 3 to 1 cent; glass and porcelain otherwise are unchanged. Furniture, finished and ready for use, has been advanced 5 cents and will pay from 20 to 40 cents, according to quality. Common wooden furniture unfinished is reduced from 15 to 8 cents. Jewelry is increased, and will pay from $50 to $75 according to class. Carriages are unchanged and will pay from 35 to 60 cents according to weight. Unfinished and upholstered carriages will only pay for the same class from 10 to 30 cents. Fire arms are somewhat reduced. Rubber cloth and rubber clothing will be increased from 80 cents to $2. Machinery for industrial and agricultural purposes, mines and the arts is free, only when it is [illegible] lever; if so arranged it is to pay 5 cents. Tools are reduced from 10 to 5 cents; steel ingots are reduced from 5 to 3 cents. Pig iron is reduced to 3 cents, bar iron to 10 cents. Angle iron will be 3 cents, sheet iron and corrugated iron, galvanized or not, 4 cents. Iron beams will remain at 1 cent. Manufactures of iron, not otherwise specified, will be increased from 20 to 25 cents. In many cases legal weight is substituted for gross weight, that is, the goods do not have to pay duty on the box or barrels containing them.

EUROPEAN NEWS.

The Paris correspondent of The Times discussing the situation in Russia says:

After the Rothschilds' refusal of a loan to Russia it was found that it would require £12,000,000 to relieve the distress in Russia, whilst the poverty of the people would cause a large reduction in the customs receipts from the sale of alcohol and the expense of increasing her armament would bring the [illegible] deficit up to £35,000,000 or £40,000,000. Russia early asked the Cronstadt entente to make a fresh but futile application to the Rothschilds, who [illegible] the difficulty France [illegible] would be in having to pay £35,000,000 to £40,000,000 in gold for American wheat. Then other bankers were approached and they agreed to advance a loan to Russia at the [illegible] offered by the [illegible] loan cannot be negotiated before October. It will be issued at 84 or 84½, and will be absorbed by the investors, as large bankers, especially Jews, dislike Russian issues.

The Standard's Moscow correspondent, commenting on the demands that come from all quarters for measures to relieve distress, says it is plain that the distress is greater and more widespread than was at first supposed, and that the worst is still to come.

At the trades union congress at Newcastle to-day, after considerable discussion and much opposition to the measure, the congress by a large majority approved a resolution favoring an international eight-hour law.

No Jewish Paupers.

New York, Sept. 8. J. A. Seligman, one of the trustees of the Baron Hirsch fund, was asked to-day in regard to the truth of the reports that the Baron Hirsch fund was being used to bring to this country paupers and that organized labor unions, composed largely of Hebrews, were being endangered by the importation of cheap labor. Mr. Seligman said: "Not one dollar of the Hirsch fund has been used to pauperize labor or to bring over penniless immigrants. It is largely used to educate the children and to forward deserving Hebrews to various parts of the country. We have aided no paupers to come to this country. The money is used here for the assistance of those who have already arrived."

SKIFF'S PLANS.

Important Meeting of World's Fair Commissioners.

THE MINES AND MINING EXHIBIT.

The Display in This Department Will Be the Most Instructive and Magnificent the World Has Ever Witnessed—Resources Assured.

Chicago, Sept. 8.—[illegible] one of the most important meetings of the World's Fair national commissioners yet held was concluded this afternoon with important action regarding the mines and mining department.

The unanimity and heartiness with which it was taken was refreshing after the warm arguments and sharp discussions that characterized some of the proceedings. The mining committee of the commission consists of sixteen members, every one of whom ranks as a practical expert.

This committee adopted a resolution congratulating Director-general Davis upon the appointment of Chief Skiff and pledging their individual and united assistance to make the department a success. This action, is understood, insures a solid backing of resources, reaching well up into the millions.

During the discussion it was declared that if Commissioner Skiff's plans are carried out on the broad plan he has inaugurated, the mining exhibit will be not only the most instructive, but the most magnificent and interesting the world has ever seen.

Commissioner Goodell, of Colorado, after the adjournment of the meeting said, in an interview, with the other members of the commission, his judgment was that the Exposition would be a remarkable success. He felt assured, he added, that Colorado would be excellently represented in the exhibits, and would do her share nobly.

THE COMMISSIONERS' MEETING.

Chicago, Sept. 8.—The national Columbian commissioners resumed their sessions this morning. Commissioner Mercer of Wyoming, presented a resolution suggesting the propriety of making arrangements with the various states for sending their militia to the fair in succession to act in the capacity of guards of honor and police on the grounds. After some discussion the resolution was laid on the table as outside the powers of the commission.

The committee on live stock reported a recommendation that a chief of that department be appointed, making independent of the department of agriculture. The resolution was adopted.

The action of the commission putting the control and installation of the Latin-American exhibit in the hands of the director general was reconsidered, and the exhibit was again put in charge of W. E. Curtis subject to the control of the chief of the foreign department. The commission then adjourned to meet next April.

A Typefounders' Trust.

Chicago, Sept. 8.—A morning paper says: A deal will be completed within the next twenty-four hours in all probability whereby a trust will be formed representing $18,000,000 in original sureties. It is to be a typefounders' trust, backed by an English syndicate. All the type foundries of any consequence in America are in the deal with the exception of Barnhardt Bros. & Spindler of this city and perhaps two concerns in New York. The smaller concerns interested will be closed out of existence. In all the great centers the number of foundries will be reduced to the minimum. New York will probably have three, Chicago, Philadelphia and Boston two each, Baltimore, Cincinnati and St. Louis one each, while the concerns in Kansas City, Cleveland, St. Paul and Buffalo will be closed out entirely.

THE REPORTS CONFIRMED.

St. Louis, Sept. 8.—The officers of the Central type foundry and the St. Louis type foundry of this city confirm the reports from Chicago to the effect that a combination or trust will be formed. The plan, as outlined by a gentleman here, is the same as the sugar trust, viz: The different concerns will place a valuation on their properties and pool it, receiving an equivalent in stocks from the trust.

Hide and Seek With Balmaceda.

Valparaiso, Sept. 8.—Rumors continue to spread concerning the whereabouts of the fugitive president. The other day it was said that he was fleeing by way of Los Andes in the Argentine Republic, his purpose being to reach Buenos Ayres. Now it is reported that, not daring just at the present time to make an attempt to escape from the country he has taken refuge in some of the legations or else has concealed himself in a monastery.

If he has been fortunate enough to gain admission to a legation, he will in all likelihood be protected from the wrath of his triumphant enemies. If, on the contrary, he has sought refuge in a monastery, he is in imminent danger of being captured. The junta will undoubtedly cause all the monasteries to be searched for him, if they put any faith in the reports. It seems hardly plausible, however, that he should seek an asylum with the clerical party, as it has been a recognized fact ever since the outbreak of the war in Chili that the priests were almost unanimously in sympathy with the Congressionalists.

Ex-Minister-of-foreign-affairs Aldunate, while traveling towards Santiago to-day, was stopped at Quellota, fifty miles from here, by an armed body of men.

Storage Warehouse Burned.

New York, Sept. 8.—The immense storage warehouse of R. C. Layton, at Nos. 63 and 65 South street, was destroyed by fire to-day. At least fifty business houses had goods in storage in the buildings, and among the contents were chemicals, drugs, jute, shellac and a variety of general merchandise. Mrs. Carleton, 55 years old, the janitress and an invalid, was carried from her sick bed to the roof and lowered down into No. 61.

The fumes of the chemicals, composed principally of vitriol, burned into the flesh and eyes of the firemen. Five of them were burned, two severely.

A LATER.

The fire again broke out and raged fiercely for an hour. Statements made by Mr. Layton warrant giving $150,000 as the loss on stock and $75,000 on the building. Added to this is the damage by water to goods stored in the adjoining buildings, occupied by Charles Kauffman, tobacconist, and small offices which will bring the total up to $4[illegible],000.

Next Transmississippi Congress.

Omaha, Sept. 8.—The committee having the matter in charge has issued a call for the next meeting of the Transmississippi commercial congress to meet in Omaha, Oct. 17, for a five-days' session. The meeting was in Denver in May and the preceding one in Kansas City. All states and territories lying west of the Mississippi river are entitled to representation in the congress by delegates appointed by the governors, and all cities and towns having boards of trade are authorized to send committees.

It is estimated that 800 delegates will be [illegible] and the leading economic questions [illegible] they affect the west will be discussed [illegible] recommendations made to the congress of the United States. Omaha is making [illegible] preparations for the entertainment of [illegible].

Wells [illegible]

Denver, [illegible] 8.—The [illegible] Denver and Chicago [illegible] to be [illegible] the Rock Island has found that [illegible] duce its running time by two hours on its new route and announce that on Sunday next it will put a new schedule in force, which will be four hours shorter than the best time now being made. Instead of leaving Chicago at 8 p. m. it will delay departure until 10 p. m. and arrive in Denver at the same time as now. This change will probably be met by the Burlington.

The Searles Will Case.

Salem, Mass., Sept. 8.—Hon. E. T. Burley and ex-Governor W. C. Endicott this morning filed a notice of intention to contest the will of Mary F. Searles, of Methuen, Mass., on behalf of her adopted son, Timothy Hopkins. The counsel declines to talk of the case, but the ground of the contest is understood to be undue influence and that testatrix was not of sound mind. A hearing was fixed for Sept. 22.

BASE BALL.

Western Association.

KANSAS CITY-DENVER.

Kansas City, Sept. 8.—Kansas City-Denver game postponed; rain.

SIOUX CITY-OMAHA.

Sioux City, Sept. 8.—After a long quarrel about the guarantee, Omaha was induced to submit to the fifth slaughter today by the invincible Huskers. Umpire Knight failed to show up. Score: Sioux City 7, Omaha 3. Game called at end of seven innings to catch the train.

National League.

CINCINNATI-BROOKLYN.

Brooklyn, Sept. 8.—Brooklyn and Cincinnati played off a postponed game to-day before a small crowd. The weather was raw and so was the playing. By bunching their hits just when the home team bunched their errors, the visitors got a good lead in the third inning and succeeded in keeping it, although the home team hit hard and worked hard to overcome it. Hemming was relieved by Terry in the third inning. Score: Cincinnati 6, Brooklyn 4.

BOSTON-CLEVELAND.

Boston, Sept. 8.—Less than 3000 people witnessed two games between the Cleveland and Boston teams this afternoon. The first game was excellent in sharp, effective and clever fielding. Clarkson was an enigma. Gruber, on the other hand, was wild and Young inclined to slowness. Score: Boston 8, Cleveland 6.

In the second game Staley appeared in the box for the local team, with Viau in the same position for the visitors. Viau carried off the honors easily, though Staley was poorly supported. Score: Cleveland 6, Boston 3.

American Association.

At Boston—Boston 9, St. Louis 2.

At Washington—First game—Columbus 4, Washington 3; second game: Columbus 8, Washington 7.

Off day for the other clubs.

Train Robbers Reported.

Silver Cliff, Colo., Sept. 8.—A number of men, heavily armed, started for [illegible], this county, early this morning, where it is rumored and confidently believed the D. & R. G. train robbers are now in hiding. Under-sheriff Edwin Mitchell heads the posse.

Indian Irrigation.

The Denver Mining Industry says: Some time ago Industry stated that irrigation in India had reclaimed an arid region as great in extent as that between the Rocky mountains and the Missouri river. In response to a request for more information in relation to it, some facts are given, mostly taken from The Indian Engineer:

The great canal of India is the Ganges. It is about what a canal in this country would be if the Missouri river were diverted from its bed into a ditch running through the arid region parallel with the mountains. Every stream is utilized there, and reservoirs are in constant use. Engineering skill is also active in devising means to utilize the underground flow, such as we have all over the plains country.

The great Ganges canal controls 10,440,010 acres, of which it irrigates 1,000,000 acres, and has 476 miles of main canal, 2509 miles of distributaries, 825 miles of escapes and drainage cuts, and its total mileage is 3810. Each distributary would be a large canal in America, and has numerous masonry bridges, regulators, and aqueducts along its line.

Another great canal system is that of the Sirhind Canal in the Punjab. The direction of works consists of the usual weir, with undersluices in it, and regulators at the canal head. In the first [illegible] miles the fall is great, and there are a number of drainage works of which the Sisuan Superpassage carries 20,000 second feet and the Budki Superpassage 30,000 second feet of water. The main canal principal branches are in all 1250 miles in length, of which 666 miles are main navigable canal. Its discharge is estimated at 7000 second feet, though it generally carries only from [illegible] to [illegible]. The gross area commanded by the canal is [illegible],600 acres, of which 800,000 acres are irrigable. In the autumn of 1890 the duty of water per second foot on the supply entering at the canal head was 119 acres or $113.

The total original cost of the works was $12,000,000, of which, exclusive of cost of land and maintenance, $400,000 was for headworks, $6,500,000 for the main canal and branches, exclusive of $1,100,000 for right of way and navigation works, and $[illegible],000 was for drainage and protective works.

For 800,000 acres of irrigable land the earthworks cost $1.25 per acre, or, our contract prices in the west being say ten cents per cubic yard, while theirs is but four cents this earthwork would have cost us $10.62 per acre. The masonry work, such as falls, weirs, regulators, and bridges, cost in all $2,400,000, or $3.00 per acre irrigated. Rubble masonry costs in India about $2.00 per cubic yard. In the west it averages say $6.00. Hence these masonry works would have cost us $6.00 per acre.

The Ganges canal is arranged for navigation, as well as for irrigation, its aqueducts and embankments being built upon a scale which is unequaled in modern times. The canal was projected and built by the government. The other canals of importance in the northwest provinces and the Punjab are the Eastern Jumna, the Western Jumna and the Bari Doab canals, carrying from 2000 to 3000 feet per second, and each several hundred miles in length. Passing from northern to southern India, one finds in the delta of the Cauvery, the Godavery, and the Kistna rivers a comprehensive system of canals, no one of which, indeed, can compare in length or dimensions with those just named, but which, taken together, irrigate very large areas in their respective deltas. These delta systems have enriched people and state alike. They have placed declining districts in a condition of high prosperity, and produced this result in a very short time.

Under the care of the British government irrigation enterprise in India is making great headway. Among the systems that have been commenced and partially completed within a comparatively recent period are the Soonkesala and Bellairy canals, from the Toombuddra river, 350 miles long; the Soane, just completed, from the river of the same name, to carry 4500 cubic feet per second, with a capacity to irrigate 1,000,000 acres; the Sirhind canal, from the Sutlej river, to cost $15,000,000; the Lower Ganges canal, to carry 6000 cubic feet per second; the Orissa canal, built by the East India Irrigation company, all of which are very large enterprises, some of them rivaling the Ganges canal in magnitude and importance. To these may be added the Agra canal, from the Jumna, and the Eastern Ganges canal. All of these except two, have been built or restored by the government, which owns all of them but one.

The [illegible] of the Russian banquet to be held on Friday in honor of the fete day of the czar have engaged the band of the Republican Guard. The Russian national hymn and the Marseillaise are to be played and the czar and President Carnot to be toasted.

LOCAL EVENTS.

State Pharmaceutical Association Meets in Durkee Hall.

INTERESTING TRADE EXHIBITS.

A Pleasant Ball in The Antlers Pavilion—Miss Harrison Talks About Kindergartens—Rainbow Falls Spoiled by a Blast.

Druggists as a rule are jolly good fellows, not only in temperance towns but elsewhere, and the gentlemen who are now attending the sessions of the State Pharmaceutical association in this city are no exception to the rule. There are nearly fifty of them and quite a number of ladies in the party. Most of them are quartered at The Antlers and they make their headquarters in Durkee hall. While in the city they are in the hands of the local reception committee, assisted by Mr. G. B. Storer, the local secretary.

The session of the association was opened in the K. of P. lodge room by a prayer yesterday afternoon about half past three. Mayor Sprague then delivered a very humorous address of welcome, concluding with some good original poetry. Mr. A. B. Leavey of Denver responded in kind. The president's annual address reviewing the work of the year was read, the roll call was read and messages of greeting were sent to the State Pharmaceutical associations of New Hampshire, Minnesota and Virginia, which are now in session.

After some routine business, a very interesting and able paper was read by Dr. Nicholas Anderson of Fort Collins, upon the adulteration and sophistications of some of the staple drugs and preparations. The exact analyses of some of these preparations were given, the exposition being of great value to the druggists. The committee on papers and queries reported, and after some further routine business the association adjourned until this morning at 9 o'clock.

Last evening the pharmacists were given a grand ball in The Antlers pavilion and it was one of the best and most pleasant social events which has occurred for some time. Metz's orchestra furnished the music and Mr. W. Whitbeck had charge of the floor. The room was full of dancers, a large number of townspeople and Antlers guests assisting in the revelry. An elegant claret punch was served as refreshment. The dance continued until nearly midnight.

The association will remain in town to-day and to-morrow and besides completing their session will have a ball game, of Denver against the state; egg and spoon and wheelbarrow races and other diversions, for which handsome prizes have been offered by eastern druggist supplies firms; a carriage ride to the Garden of the Gods and Manitou, and a concert by the Hungarian band at Broadmoor.

A number of prominent firms dealing in druggists' supplies are represented by large exhibits of the latest novelties in those lines, and by jolly, social representatives.

Morrison, Plummer & Co. of Chicago take up nearly all one end of Durkee hall with an exhibition of bottles, fancy toilet goods and all sorts of druggists' "extras," besides some splendid samples of staples. Their stock of samples is worth several thousand dollars and is in charge of Messrs. Walter H. Hunter and Thomas R. Flannery.

Grosvenor, Richards & Co. of Boston and New York, have only one department of their [illegible] represented, with Messrs. W. J. Thompson and S. D. Merton in charge. The exhibit includes all sorts of medicated plasters, ligatures, [illegible] and gauzes and is very interesting even to a layman.

Solon Palmer, the manufacturer of perfumes, has a display of fine perfumery and ornamental cases for the holiday trade, with Mr. W. E. Osborne in charge.

A big sign in Durkee hall announces that the Meyer Bros. Drug company has its headquarters at The Antlers and that Messrs. D. Y. Wheeler, J. T. Flavan and E. A. Arden will be glad to greet all druggists there. The Meyer Bros. company is the biggest drug concern in the world, having houses in New York, St. Louis, Kansas City, Dallas and Fort Wayne, and their display fills two of The Antlers sample rooms. It includes all sorts of brushes, toilet ware, fancy goods, drugs, perfumes, sponges, and about all the stock needed to establish the business.

Messrs. W. A. Hover & Co., wholesale druggists of Denver, have no display, but their traveling man, Mr. F. E. James, keeps open house at the Alamo, and many friends drop in to call on him.

Those in attendance upon the meeting of the association are Mr. Charles M. Ford, president, of Denver; Mr. S. F. [illegible], first vice president, of Leadville; Mr. Chas. Newman, second vice president, of Durango; Mr. Felix [illegible], secretary, of Denver, and Mr. [illegible], treasurer, of Longmont; Messrs. [illegible] Clark, J. J. Donegan and John Kochaf of the Denver Pharmaceutical association; [illegible] A. B. Libby, C. D. [illegible], C. P. Janvier, Colorado alumni of the Philadelphia College of Pharmacy; Dr. A. Wheeler, [illegible] Axtell, Wm. [illegible], John Flavan, W. S. Howell, A. B. [illegible], Thos. Flannery, W. S. Rand, Douglas Tites, John J. Smythe, F. H. Angels, A. Miss Harrison's Lecture.

The kindergarten idea is beginning to take a strong hold upon the educated people of Colorado Springs and so there was a large and attentive audience in the handsome lecture room of the First Baptist church last evening to listen to a lecture by Miss Harrison, principal of the Chicago Kindergarten Training school on "How the Kindergarten Prepares the Child for True Citizenship."

The speaker was a thorough enthusiast in her kindergarten work and she held the attention of the audience which was about equally men and women, the parents of families, from the first word she spoke. She briefly sketched the great dangers that were besetting our American civilization from the great inflow of ignorant and degraded foreigners and quoted statistics to show that the danger came greatly from the children born to these classes in this country, for, she showed, there were ten children born of poor, ignorant parents, to one from among surroundings conducive to [illegible]. The state legislature had [illegible] that no public-rooms should be used for the education of children under 6 years old, but she called upon all who heard her to go forth and agitate this matter until provision had been made for kindergartens. The whole world [illegible] looking to the American people for [illegible] and it behooved every good citizen to look to the improvement of the race.

The public schools, she said, did not take hold early enough. A noted Catholic writer [illegible] said, "Give me a child till he is eight old, and I care not who has him afterwards." Early impressions were the most lasting and could not be obliterated. At six it was too late to do much toward controlling the direction of a child's thoughts. What would the world think of a horticulturist who had imported some rare, delicate flowers from a foreign land and would say, "Oh, let them stay out in the sun until they get older, and then I'll take care of them." Or what would they think of a man who would overlook the foundation of his house because it was out of sight, and put his money into a high cupola? The child's life should be founded upon the social rock of early training. The public schools did not pay enough attention to the emotional life of the child, its likes and dislikes. The likes and dislikes actuated the habits. The habits directed the growth of the will powers.

Kindergarten work was partly founded upon the great philosophical Law of Recognition, the principle that what is already in the mind is most easily recognized. This point she illustrated by a person looking over a crowd in a church and seeing only the faces he knew, or seeing only the interesting items in looking over a paper. All the great writers and thinkers had recognized this principle, but none of them had put it into the mother's hand before Froebel. The children should be taught to recognize only the right things by having them uppermost in its mind. She then told of a class of children in Chicago of the absolutely degenerate poor, people who were unknown in Colorado Springs, who lived in tenements and cellars among saloons and vile moral surroundings. These children had many of them never seen a tree, or even a bird or flower. She told how after seven months of school they went on a picnic and the only things they saw that they paid any attention to at all were the things they had been told about. Trees and birds and flowers, and the trades they had "played at" interested them, but pop corn stands, and the seductive pink lemonade and other sights they had not learned of they paid no attention to, though many of these ignored sights were just as interesting and novel as the others. The value of the kindergarten to these children lay in the teaching of their eyes to see only the things they ought to, their ears to hear what they ought and their lips to say only what they ought.

She said that a man who employed 1800 men once told her that the kindergarten was his [illegible] of hope for the future of his men. He had tried industrial schools and other reformatory measures but this was the first thing that seemed to offer any solution of the matter.

She then clearly demonstrated the value of the kindergarten from the intellectual, the mechanical and the economical standpoint. She was of the opinion that the solution of the labor question would come through the kindergarten, in early teaching children the common heritage of work and the dignity of labor. But the highest use of the kindergarten, the lecturer showed, was in the spiritual side. She illustrated how the careful teacher could guide her wards to a conception of the right and how she could [illegible] their ideals into use, and make them, not sentimental, but noble [illegible] unselfish and honorable in their hopes and actions.

The kindergarten work, she said, made the children to make clear [illegible] concepts, to imagine correctly. She, in closing, detailed the various influences brought to bear in training the young mind aright; the cleanliness, order, music and gentle words that they were attuned to. She closed with an earnest exhortation to the audience that they do all they could to advance the kindergarten cause. That they give not only their money but their influence, so that the wonderful purity of the life and the air in Colorado might be supplemented by careful training.

Miss Harrison will hold a meeting for mothers at the First Baptist church [illegible] evening, at which a good attendance is expected.

Rainbow Falls No More.

Careless blasting on the part of the workmen engaged in fixing up the [illegible] through Ute Pass resulted this morning in spoiling Rainbow falls, one of Manitou's greatest attractions. The "spout" of stone which threw the water out in a solid, symmetrical body, was destroyed, and it now trickles aimlessly down over the rocks. An effort will be made to "restore" it, but it will never be the same again.

New York Stock Market.

New York, Sept. 8.—Trading on the stock exchange this morning was active, [illegible] shares changing hands in the two hours to noon. There was considerable feverishness in connection with the dealings and some irregularity. The principal [illegible] were in Union Pacific, North American, Missouri Pacific, Nickel Plate, [illegible] Southern, Rock Island and Atchison. The opening figures were generally fractionally higher while Delaware and Hudson was especially strong, advancing 1 per cent. On the other hand Union Pacific [illegible] and declined ½ to 41¾. There was a further fractional advance in the general list during the early part of the first hour and North American and Canada Southern advanced 1 per cent. each, and Nickel Plate second preferred advanced 3 per cent. Toward 11 o'clock there was a slight reaction but in the second hour the market was again strong and prices advanced in some to the top figures by noon. The advance at noon ranged [illegible] to ½ per cent., as compared with [illegible] figures.

The market was not strong during the last half of [illegible] was active. Prices [illegible] the afternoon [illegible] Union Pacific and [illegible] attempt to advance [illegible] with free sales. The market closed unsettled with prices irregularly and slightly changed in most cases from [illegible]. There was no feature in [illegible] the afternoon's trading. The [illegible] for the day amounted to 400,196 shares.

National Financial Operations.

Washington, Sept. 8.—The 4½ per cent. bonds received at the treasury department to-day for continuance at 2 per cent. amounted to $1[illegible],000, making the total to date $21,000,370. The 4½ per cent. bonds received at the department for redemption amounted to $107,000 making the total thus far redeemed $5,913,750. These figures do not include the transactions at the sub-treasury at New York.

The Swift Stallion, Calhoun.

A horse that is destined to make a great name for himself in the near future is the Pilot Medium stallion, Calhoun, with a record of 2:24½, which is no measure of his speed, as he has repeatedly gone trials at a 2:15 clip. He is a rich bay, with black points, stands over sixteen hands high and was foaled in 1885. Irving's First Voyage of Columbus. The most important voyage ever made in the world. Do not fail to begin reading it in next Sunday's Gazette.

The recent census was very favorable to progress in the southern states. That section handicapped by slavery fell rather behind, but now seems determined to catch up. At which none will rejoice more than northern men.

Lord Salisbury has a head like the sour grape for "Turkey has given no concessions to Russia that are not open to all the world." Yet who but Russia wants to send war ships through the Dardanelles, and who but England cares whether she does or not?

There have been a great many foolhardy things done by Arctic explorers, but none more so than the determination of the Peary party to remain in Greenland this winter. Short of provisions, in a house not particularly well built, the leader with a broken leg and his wife with him. Such a resolve to carry out the plans of the expedition comes just about as near heroism as suicide usually does.

The United States is spending a good deal of money on its navy, but not near as much as many of the European powers. France is building her navy [illegible] that it must be as strong as that of Germany, Austria and Italy combined; while England works on the principle that hers must be as strong as any other two in the world together. Yet the first airship whose construction may safely be prophesied before the year 1900 will make the monsters of the sea almost valueless.

Some people are talking about Cardinal Gibbons for pope. He has not as much chance as David B. Hill has to be president. Since 1417 there have been fifty-one popes, of whom two were Spanish and one Dutch. [illegible] were Italians. [illegible] who [illegible] hold [illegible] sixty-four cardinals upon whose the election depends. Of this, 34 are Italians, 1 English, 2 German, 1 Hungarian, 2 Polish, 4 Spanish, 1 Austrian, 8 French, 2 Portuguese, 1 Irish, 1 Canadian, 1 American, 2 Bohemian, 1 Belgian, 1 Cuban. Cardinal Gibbons is one of the most talented and progressive men in the Roman church, but his chances to be pope are very small.

The inability of the late but not lamented legislature to frame laws in such a way that they could and would be executed is the reason why it is necessary for the Rocky Mountain Sportsmen's association to collect funds for prosecuting violators of the game and fish laws. Such a state of affairs is as discreditable to the state as it is creditable to the sportsmen's association. And by the way it [illegible] to see Colorado Springs as it appeared yesterday, moving at the very end of the list, having subscribed [illegible] for this purpose the sum of fifty [illegible]. There are a good many people here who are interested in the fish and deer, and opposed to their needless and wanton slaughter. We feel confident that Mr. C. M. Hampson of Denver, [illegible] of the association, will even give Colorado Springs credit for much [illegible].

It is extremely unfortunate, to say the [illegible] at the roadmaking operations in the Ute Pass should have resulted in injury to the Rainbow Falls. The natural attractions around Colorado Springs and Manitou form a large part of their [illegible] resources. However deficient a man may be in his appreciation of scenery and natural beauty, he can but admit that they have a real and positive value, because they are attractive to other people. It is not only sentiment which should operate to keep all our scenery in its original beauty, but it is the plainest and simplest business sense. The water part of our scenery is the [illegible]. Rainbow Falls was the best [illegible]. It was not as high as some in other places, it had not as large a volume of water as many elsewhere, but it was the highest fall of the Pike's Peak [illegible] easily accessible and it was [illegible] beautiful. It had been proposed to injure or destroy it to shatter the rocks so that the water instead of shooting gracefully out into the air, should fall down over the broken rocks with most of its beauty and all of its naturalness gone. Dozens of pens could have been active in its defense, and hundreds of dollars could have been raised to prevent this. We do not know through whose fault or carelessness this happened; we do know that it is an outrage [illegible] destruction of natural beauty and a severe loss to our natural attractions. And the worst of the whole wretched business is that no amount of talk or writing or money can put it back as it was before.

THE SUNDAY GAZETTE.

Many notable features have been secured, or are being negotiated for the Sunday Gazette during the coming winter. Among those already arranged for, we call attention to:

Columbus' First Voyage, by Washington Irving. The approaching four hundredth anniversary of the discovery of America has awakened an extraordinary interest in that [illegible]. [illegible] are being made in both hemispheres for a series of appropriate celebrations. Christopher Columbus [illegible] the bright particular [illegible] in this affair. The facts concerning his life [illegible] made the subject [illegible] learned research, and [illegible] which pertains to his history [illegible] with avidity. [illegible] It is fortunate that America [illegible] in the career of Columbus has given to the world the most accurate and comprehensive and withal the most pleasing and fascinating history of the discovery of the New World. Irving's "Life and Voyages of Columbus" is an American classic. This history is particularly adapted at this time for newspaper publication. Aside from its intrinsic merit as the veracious chronicle of a stupendous event, this story possesses all the charm of romance and the subtle fascination imparted by a master of literature. Those qualities combined with the unusual and widespread interest now manifested in the subject, are calculated to give a renewed popularity [illegible]. This edition comprises a complete account of Columbus' first voyage to America and is given in the language of Irving, without change or elimination. The illustrations are accurate reproductions of the best authenticated portraits. Publication begins next Sunday.

Stevenson's Letters from the South Seas, eleven in number, entitled: In a desert-sea; the four brothers; around my house; a tale of a tapu; more about the tapu; the five days' festival; husband and wife in the Gilberts; the king of Apemama; how the king built a town for Stevenson; the palace of many women; and, our attendants from the palace. Publication begins to-day.

A Symposium on Journalism. The future of American newspapers by distinguished American newspaper men, including Col. A. K. McClure, of the Philadelphia Times; James Scott, of the Chicago Herald; George W. Childs, of the Philadelphia Ledger; John A. Cockerill, late of the New York World; Bradford Merrill, of the Philadelphia Press; Murat Halstead, Chester Lord, of the New York Sun, Eugene O'Neill, of the Pittsburg Dispatch, and Moses P. Handy.

Bill Nye, Howard Fielding, Walter Wellman, and Geo. L. Kilmer, will continue regular contributions.

Our European letters by mail and cable will include all topics of current, besides many of general, interest.

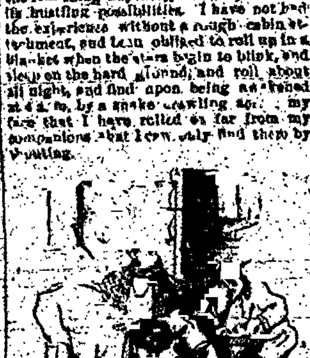
For Sunday reading for Colorado Springs people the Sunday Gazette is unequaled.

MUNKITTRICK CAMPS OUT.

[illegible] Log Cabin.

(Special Correspondence.)

Bear Creek, Luzerne County, Pa., Aug. 31.—The pleasures of camping out have never yet been so faithfully delineated in words as to give a man who has not tried the real thing anything like a fair idea of its hustling possibilities. I have not had the experience without a rough cabin attachment, and been obliged to roll up in a blanket when the stars begin to blink, and sleep on the hard ground, and roll about all night, and find upon being awakened at 4 a. m. by a snake crawling [illegible] my face that I have rolled as far from my companions that I can only find them by [illegible].



FALLING ASLEEP OVER THE LANTERN.

My camping for the last week has been in a rough made but comfortable cabin, in which tired and weary I retired to my virtuous dollar cot at the primitive hour when the screech owl began to execute his rasping nocturn. It was a great comfort in dropping off to sleep to feel that the rain could not get through the roof nor the snakes through the floor. There were no mosquitoes, and the hornets that is worse than the bite could not be heard, but we had a hornets' nest wedged in against the ceiling and wall. We left the windows open sufficiently wide to allow the hornets to pass in and out at will, and yet so nearly closed as to make it impossible for the [illegible] wild cat to happen in through the tropic odors of the night.

As a rule, we made the fire at 6 in the morning if the wood was not too green to ignite. If we could not make the fire go we would breakfast upon apple pie and milk obtained from a neighboring farmer. The great beauty of an apple pie breakfast, aside from its power to generate indigestion, lies in the fact that it doesn't leave behind it a number of dishes thickly incrusted with ham grease to be cracked with a hammer or melted off over a candle.

Upon one occasion we fried eggs over the lantern that we used at night when we wanted to find the brook to gather a pail of water. We were often driven to resort to other strange devices, such as stropping our razors on our suspenders, straining soup through an ancient straw hat, and drying the dishes, when we were too lazy to wash the towels, by arranging them in the sun upon the twinkling award.

Occasionally a cold creep would sneak along at about 3 o'clock in the morning [illegible] feel that the blankets were made of tissue paper. This would compel me to arise and dress before retiring for the rest of the night. The place was infested with ants, and the only way we managed to keep these pests out of the pork and beans was in indulging in only the canned article. We hung the loaf of bread by a string from the ceiling to prevent the [illegible] getting on it, and we never ate an [illegible] without first peeling it. The ants also made bananas popular with us. The real reason for keeping a fire in the stove [illegible] the wood would ignite, was to prevent the hop toad from covering it, and jumping at us in the dark when we happened to startle them. Now and then we would shake the occasional hop toad out of our bedding, but we didn't mind it when it began to become familiar through repetition.

No one in the party liked to wash the dishes, and no one cared for the pleasure to be found in the innocent diversion of cleaning fish. We all enjoyed an outing very much, although each of us in various ways [illegible] with about as many reverses as fall to the lot of the average pair of celluloid cuffs. It is not the most delightful sensation in the world to have the head end of your cot come down in the middle of the night and part your hair behind on the floor. Nor is it calculated to put you in the happiest frame of mind when you make the startling discovery that a companion has washed out the glasses in which eggs have been broken, with no other instrument than your silver handle lather ing brush.

R. K. MUNKITTRICK.

To Prevent a Terrible Fate.

An American inventor hopes to make a fortune out of the dread of being buried alive that affects many people. He has designed an apparatus to guard against the terrible possibility. Extending from the coffin to the surface of the grave is a large tube containing a sliding door, ladder and rope, with bell attached. The end of the rope is placed in the hand of the corpse, who, should he resuscitate, can either ring the bell to summon help or crawl out of the grave by the ladder.

Royal Conclave of Knights and Ladies.

The deputies at work in Maine report very gratifying success, and the institution of at least three new councils before the close of the month is almost a certainty. The official circular of the supreme council is meeting with hearty approval by the members.

OLD TOWNS OF AMERICA.

GLOUCESTER, MASS., TO CELEBRATE HER QUARTER MILLENNIAL.

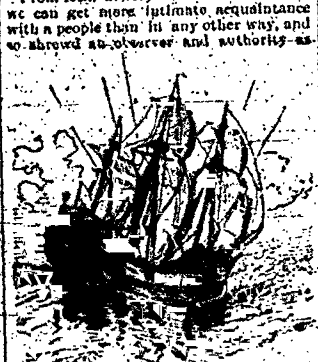
Other Cities of About Equal Age Scattered Throughout the United States. Some Nearly Forgotten, Others Great and Prosperous.

[Copyright, 1891, by American Press Association.]

SINCE the great celebration of the centennial of independence Americans have been much given to make festivals of occasions which indicated that this town or city or that church or college had reached its hundredth or perhaps two hundredth birthday. This is very well in its influence for several reasons. It inclines one to study colonial, and local history, and learn somewhat more than he otherwise would know of the sturdy men and women who settled the country, and of the farseeing and self sacrificing builders of states and commonwealths, whose wise actions and brave deeds made possible the civilization enjoyed today.

It further preserves one's pride in and contentment with that which is nearest to him, and this, I contend, is a good thing, notwithstanding the remark of Emerson, that the first indication of culture and enlightenment in a man was a loss of pride in his village. I do not think that he could have referred in any way to pride in the past, but merely to the silly and false pride which incurable provincials have in local, physical or material performances. In looking at the vast houses of Boston, Chicago or New York, it would certainly indicate in any one a contracted and benighted mind if habit compelled him to contrast these palatial piles (and that to their disadvantage) with the shabby buildings which seemed great to him when he was a boy and before he had seen the world.

From local history and local biography we can get more intimate acquaintance with a people than in any other way, and so shrewd an observer and authority as



THE MAYFLOWER.

Professor Bryce in his great work, "The American Commonwealth," said that this was particularly so of the United States. So, therefore, I think it will be wise to continue these anniversary celebrations in all parts of the country. In Gloucester, Mass., one of the old towns in New England, preparations are already in progress for a celebration of the two hundred and fiftieth anniversary of the incorporation of that town. This place, which originally included the whole of Cape Ann, was really settled in 1624, but it was sixteen years later that it was incorporated, and took its name from the old English cathedral city, whence many of the first settlers had come. The old Gloucester of Massachusetts may seem young to the mother town which is of British origin, having been built previous to the Roman occupation. But notwithstanding this, high civilities will be exchanged between the new town and the old, and messages of congratulation will be flashed under the sea, while formal addresses will be carried across the waters.

There are several older towns than this, however, in New England, and the most notable are Plymouth, where the Pilgrims landed in 1620, Salem, which John Endicott settled in 1628, and Boston, where John Winthrop's party settled in 1630. Of Boston I need not speak. Every schoolboy knows her history by heart, and if he does not, he should waste no time in learning much more of it than could ever be hinted at in a newspaper article. Plymouth, with the rock which is the shrine of every true New Englander, needs nothing that I could say which is not more fittingly said at the New England gatherings which take place every year in every considerable settlement in America. Salem went in for religion at the beginning, as the first church organization in New England was effected there in 1629. The zeal of the people of this old town in this particular direction culminated some sixty years later, when they hanged the Quakers and burned the witches.

THE NEWPORT TOWER.

In Connecticut and in Rhode Island there are also old towns which are in a general sense of contemporary origin with [illegible] New Haven, for instance, was settled in 1638, and for twenty-four years continued to be a distinct colony; then it was united to Connecticut. And New London was settled [illegible] John Winthrop [illegible], nineteen years before, had planted a colony upon the peninsula which now is Boston. In the same year in which New Haven was settled, Roger Williams and the other gentlemen of the "Company of Providence Plantations" settled Providence and Newport, in Rhode Island. If we are to believe what some antiquarians would have us, we must think that Newport was much older than this, for the remains of the prehistoric "Old Stone Mill" in that lovely city of palatial cottages indicates to those who go deep into forgotten lore that this mill was built by the Northmen, who effected a settlement there five hundred years before Christopher Columbus crossed the ocean from Spain. However this may be, they did not stay, and, so far as we are concerned, we had as well let it rest that the Roger Williams colonists were the first to make a town of that place.

Every schoolboy in America knows that Jamestown, in Virginia, was the first permanent town settled in any of the original thirteen colonies, and he will not hesitate for a moment in telling you that the date of this settlement was 1607. There also the first colonial assembly ever held in America was convened in 1619. And about Jamestown cluster the remarkable romances that that gallant adventurer, Captain John Smith, concocted when he [illegible] of Virginia and admiral of New England. But Jamestown is now only a town of the past. Man has almost deserted her, and the James river has gone far toward washing her away.

Next after Jamestown in seniority comes Albany, a very different kind of place. As early as 1609 Hendrick Hudson, in his famous yacht Half Moon, went to anchor at the head of tide water of the beautiful river which bears his name. The exact point where this yacht rode at anchor is now in what is known as Broadway. During the next few years Dutch navigators visited the point several times, and in 1614, 1615 and 1623 forts were built, and from the construction of the first of these there was a settlement in what is now the capital city of the Empire State. It was first called New Orange, and this name continued until the English occupation, in 1664, when the name was changed to Albany, in honor of the duke of York and Albany, afterward James II. The city was incorporated in 1686, Peter Schuyler being the first mayor. In 1754 there assembled in Albany, at the instigation of Benjamin Franklin, the first convention for the union of the colonies.

New York city is also among the oldest towns in America. The first settlement was made in 1614, and the next year a governor was installed. Fort Amsterdam, now the peaceful Battery which faces the bay, was built, and in the same year that master hand at trading, Peter Minuit, director general, paid the munificent sum of twenty-four dollars in cash for the whole of Manhattan island. I have heard it said that if this sum, small though it seems, had been drawing interest at 6 per cent. and compounded semiannually that it would have grown to an amount equal to the present value of the land comprised in old Peter Minuit's purchase. When Charles II captured the Dutch possessions in America [illegible] duke of York and Albany, and the name was changed, as was that of Albany.

"The prosperous city of Newark, in New Jersey is also old as we reckon time in America. It was settled by parties from Guilford and Branford in Connecticut, in 1666. These are among the oldest English and Dutch settlements, though Philadelphia is not far behind, as William Penn, with his grants from Charles II, arrived in 1682, and he brought colonists in such numbers and so rapidly that he soon had a city outstripping all others in America. Baltimore's first settler, a Quaker, arrived in 1662, and in 1682 he had a neighbor, one David Jones, but it was not till 1730 that a town was laid out.

The spot where Detroit now is was visited by the French as early as 1610, but it was a hundred years later that Antoine de la Mothe, Cadillac built Fort Pontchartrain and effected a permanent settlement. The settlement of New Orleans was even more recent. Compared with towns of Spanish origin the settlements I have spoken of seem very new. When the Spaniards first visited Santa Fe, in New Mexico, in 1542, they found there a large and thriving village of half civilized Indians. How old it was is not known, but evidently of great antiquity. Exactly when the Spaniards also settled there is not known, but since 1640 it has been the capital city of New Mexico. In the old records it has the imposing title of "Santa Fe de San Francisco de Asis."

SCENE IN OLD ST. AUGUSTINE.

St. Augustine, in Florida, is the oldest town in the United States of purely European origin, as it was settled by the Spaniards under Menendez in 1565. How they who built the old fort would open their eyes if they could see what has been done there in the last few years, during which there has been waved over the place the magic wand which financial kings possess, bidding palaces to arise which are almost marvels of the world.

From this hurried sketch it will be seen that there are many places in the land not exactly young—that is, places which have, so to speak, cut their first teeth. But while pondering on such things it is well to remember that youth, after all, is the best possession of either man or state. After youth comes maturity, after maturity old age and then inevitable decay.

Jno. Gilmer Speed.

Wealthy Colored Men in Texas.

A southern paper cites, [illegible] of its assertion that the negroes can succeed if they choose in the states where they were once slaves, the fact that half a dozen of the richest men in Texas are colored. One of them, Senator C. N. Burton, of Fort Bend county, is proprietor of his former master's plantation and several other big ranches. Fifteen years ago he sent his one time owner's widow back to her girlhood home in Virginia, and ever since has made her an allowance of $150 a month. He says that to her teaching and kindness when he was a slave he owes his present prosperity as a freeman.

OLE BULL'S UTOPIAN DREAM.

A Pile of Stones Covers the Place Where He Essayed to Build a Castle.

After Ole Bull had fiddled his way into the hearts of the American people and had accumulated a large fortune he undertook to carry out a long cherished dream. He wished to establish a colony of his countrymen in America, and for this purpose he bought, in 1852, over 12,000 acres of land in the unbroken wilderness of Potter county, Pa.

Ole Bull located 800 Norwegians and Danes on his possessions. The price he paid for his lands was about $10,000. It was his intention to found four towns. These were Walhalla, New Bergen, New Norway and Oleona. They were laid out with a view to the future and work was commenced. Mr. Bull also began work on a castle a mile or two from Oleona, which was to be a pretentious structure for the joint of the colony. Each settler was provided a plot of ground and set to work.

Unfortunately for the success of the colony, Ole Bull had no knack of protecting himself against unscrupulous sharpers, and his lands were found to be involved in such a manner that questions arose as to the titles. [illegible] many of the colonists left. They were also compelled to undergo a good many [illegible] to which they were unaccustomed to. The great trees which stood in the way of [illegible] an obstacle they did not know how to remove. They grubbed the forest with mattocks instead of felling the trees with axes. The hardships of the wilderness and of the pioneer's life discouraged them.

In a year or two the colonists had nearly all scattered, the most of them going to Wisconsin and the northwest, and Mr. Bull, disheartened, his property gone and the savings of his lifetime gone with his youth, left his colony and his cherished hopes and returned with his violin to entertain the people again with his unequaled music.

Walhalla and New Norway fell into decay, the castle was abandoned—an unfinished pile of rocks—and the lands passed into the hands of William Radde, who subsequently founded a German settlement, which was more successful.

Of the Ole Bull colony, a few remained at Oleona, which is a thriving hamlet. New Bergen is also still a wayside settlement. A few of the colonists survive, but the founder, Ole Bull, died in Norway.

When the colony was first projected it may be expected that Ole Bull had a great many friends who wished him unbounded prosperity and success. From these friends came to the colonists donations of much money, appliances, stock, etc. A notable gift was from Henry Clay, the distinguished Kentuckian, who sent a number of fine Kentucky cattle and horses from his fine place at Ashland.—Bradford (Pa.) HE COMING INTERNATIONAL CRICKET MATCHES.

HAWKE AND HIS ENGLISHMEN

hey Propose to Make the Yankee Team Eat Humble Pie but Perhaps They Won't Do It—Philadelphia's Crack Players and What They Will Have to Do

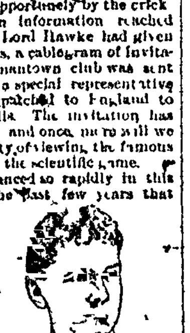
It is now five years since the cricketers [illegible] had an oppor-nity of testing their skill against the representatives of the home of the game although negotiations have been entered into more than once during the past years a strange fatality has seemed to make all efforts to arrange an international match.

The abandonment of the proposed trip of English team to India has, however, seized upon opportunely by the crickers here. When information reached Philadelphia that Lord Hawke had given up the Indian plans, a cablegram of invitation from the Germantown club was sent immediately and a special representative forthwith dispatched to England to complete the details. The invitation has been accepted and once more will we have an opportunity of viewing the famous glish experts at the scientific game.

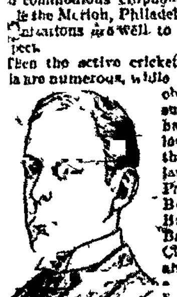
Cricket has advanced so rapidly in this ntry within the past few years that any believe the glishmen will taken completely surprise, and t alone will the mericans give em a good game, t that a few victories will not be t of place. In Philadelphia, especially the standard of play has ached a high point, and on the perfect which is epared for the big games large scoring is on the rule instead of the exception. The Germantown club's grounds at Manheim are rtainly the most beautiful on the continent if not in the world, and when it is own that $80,000 was spent on their eparation some idea of their magnitude d perfection may be gleaned. The club is just passed a resolution ordering the ection of a monster grand stand at a cost ot less than $10,000, while another large m will be spent in refitting the present splendid clubhouse, which will be turned into a palatial mansion.

The Belmont club of Philadelphia has beautiful grounds and a handsome commodious clubhouse at Elmwood, the Merion, Philadelphia and Tioga [illegible] are well to the fore in this pect.

Of the active cricketers of Philadelphia are numerous, while those who have obtained great success either in handling the willow or trundling the sphere form a large quota. G. S. Patterson, F. H. Bohlen, R. D. Brown, F. E. Brewster, E. W. Clarke and others are all well known [illegible], but on the other side, H. I. Brown, H. P. Bailey, A. E. ith and G. S. Patterson are all bowlers he first order, and would give the Englishmen all they could do to make runs. New York, Boston, Chicago and Pittsburg can all place splendid teams in the field and it is doubted if New England's bowling talent can be equaled anywhere he country.



G. S. PATTERSON.

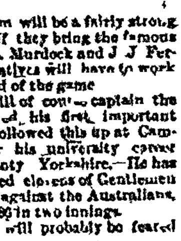


F. H. BOHLEN.

The English team will be a fairly strong combination, and if they bring the famous Australians, W. L. Murdock and J. J. Ferris, our representatives will have to work d to keep ahead of the game.

Lord Hawke will of course captain the team. He played his first important match at Eton, followed this up at Cambridge, and after his university career played for his county, Yorkshire. He has been on picked elevens of Gentlemen of England, and against the Australians, he scored 80 in two innings.

S. M. J. Woods will probably be feared by the players here than any other member of the team. He is considered to be the best amateur bowler in England, and his work at Cambridge for the past four years has never before been equaled in university. He is very fast and breaks without the least.



S. M. J. WOODS.

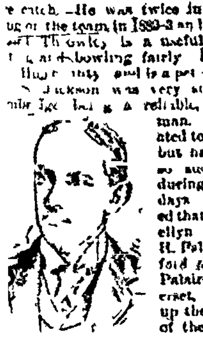
Key, the famous Surrey bat, is on the team. He is a powerful hitter and fast run getter, and should be one of the most dangerous bats on the eleven.

Hewett is a left hander, with powerful defense and strong hitting powers. He was captain of Somerset in 1889, and is another a useful man.

Vernon is one of the hard hitters of Middlesex. He is also a splendid outfielder, covers an immense territory, and is a sure catch. He was twice in Australia, going with the team in 1882-3 and 1887-8.

Thornton is a useful man, both at batting and bowling fairly. He is from [illegible].

Jackson was very successful at Cambridge, but is a reliable all round man. He graduated to Yorkshire but has not been so successful as during his college days. It is expected that M. L. Llewellyn and L. C. H. Palairet, of Oxford, and R. C. N. Palairet, of Somerset, will make up the remainder of the team and there is also a probability that K. [illegible] who has been [illegible] successful for Oxford this year, will also accompany the team.



F. AVERN [illegible]

[illegible] team should make a splendid record for the United States, but, as before stated, [illegible] of the Englishmen will be [illegible] wonderful improvement has taken place among our players, [illegible] hold them too cheaply. [illegible] English teams which have come [illegible] with wonderful success, and the visit of the first eleven, under [illegible] in 1859, to the last in 1886, game was lost by the English. first game was in 1885 and the Gentlemen of Philadelphia had the honor of [illegible] the English record in the Quaker [illegible] 17, 18 and 19.

It is expected that the present English [illegible] leave Liverpool on Sept. 16 by [illegible] City of New York, and the following are the terms of agreement:

Lord Hawke to bring out a team of at least [illegible] English amateur cricketers. The Germantown Cricket club to undertake the whole of the legitimate expenses attached to it.

[illegible] play two matches at least in Philadelphia, the first Friday, Saturday and Monday, [illegible] 26, 27 and 28, against the Gentlemen [illegible] and the second on Thursday, [illegible] Saturday, Oct. 1, 2 and 3, against a [illegible] represent the United States.

ROLLO IN NEW YORK.

He Sees the Sights with Uncle George and Writes Home.

The morning after their arrival in New York Jonas and Rollo were sitting together in the sunny front room in the hotel when Rollo suddenly remembered that he had a letter to write to his father that day, so he opened his trunk and took out his little portfolio, a fresh quire of note paper, a pen and bottle of ink and some envelopes and placed them all on the table.

"What are you going to do now, Rollo?" asked Jonas.

"I am going to write a letter to my father," replied Rollo.

"Don't you think you had better wait for your Uncle George to come and tell you how to write?" continued Jonas. "More haste less speed, you know."

"I've been to school long enough to know how to write a letter," retorted Rollo, who, like most boys, was fond of having his own way. Jonas smiled, but said nothing, and Rollo took up his pen and began to write. Pretty soon he looked up and said to Jonas:

"What was that place to which Uncle George so kindly took us last night?"

"That," replied Jonas, "is what is called a lecture, but if you are going to write to your father about it you had better wait till your uncle comes. He is a master hand at letter writing."

But Rollo paid no heed to Jonas and went on with his work. Pretty soon the door opened and Mr. George entered the room.

"Good morning, Rollo; good morning, Jonas," he said. "Well, Rollo, I see you are ready to take a lesson this morning. I am glad that you have already begun to practice."

"He is writing a letter to his father," said Jonas. "I told him to wait till you came, but he wanted to write about that—that er lecture he saw last night."

"Good gracious, Rollo!" exclaimed Mr. George. "I am glad I came in time. Let me see what you have written."

Rollo handed his uncle the letter, and Mr. George read as follows:

"MY DEAR FATHER—I arrived in New York with Jonas and Uncle George met us and we went to a nice hotel, where he showed me how to get a dinner for less than six dollars apiece. We had terrapin and I ate two wings and something that fizzled out of a bottle, and after dinner Jonas took some medicine. Then we went to a lecture where there were a great many ladies with red legs."

This was as far as Rollo had written, and when Mr. George had read it he said: "I am glad that I came in time, Rollo, for it would have grieved your kind father to have received such a letter as this from his only son. He would think that your mind was filled entirely with frivolous things and that you were deriving no real benefit from the many instructive talks we have had. Now I will show you how to write a letter."

This was the letter that Mr. Holiday received the next day:

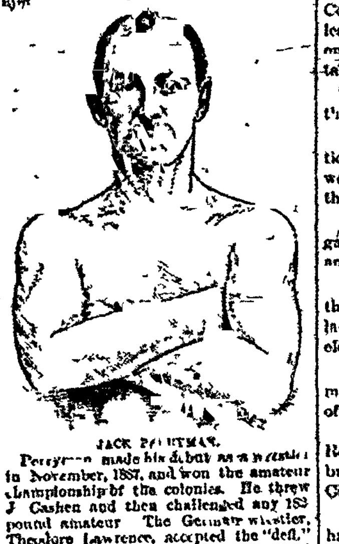
MY DEAR FATHER—I am having a very nice time and am learning a great deal. Uncle George met us at the depot and we went to dinner. We had a [illegible] bill of fare [illegible] as Uncle George told me. Then we attended a lecture which later [illegible] both Jonas and me very much. Uncle George thought that you would have enjoyed it too. I am keeping an account of everything that I spend, because things cost a great deal here. When I write next I will send you the account. Your affectionate son, ROLLO.

"Is that all you're going to say about money?" asked Jonas. "That's all right," rejoined Mr. George; "we'll touch him for some more dust later on."—J. L. Ford in New York Herald.

WRESTLER JACK PERRYMAN.

[illegible] of the Victories of the Australian Heavyweight Champion.

"A well knit frame, powerfully fashioned arms and legs, a back as obstinate as an oak tree, and pluck, skill and endurance have made Jack Perryman the champion heavyweight wrestler of Australia at the age of twenty-three. None of the antipodean gladiators can stand up before young Jack, and visiting wrestlers meet with no better success when they tackle him.

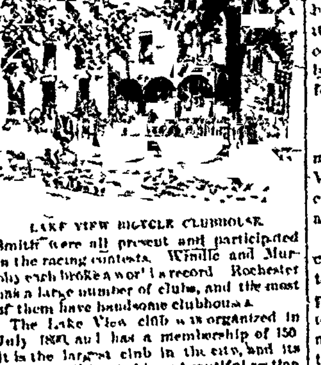


JACK PERRYMAN.

Perryman made his debut as a wrestler in November, 1887, and won the amateur championship of the colonies. He threw J. Cashen and then challenged any 182 pound amateur. The German wrestler, Theodore Lawrence, accepted the "defi," but was easily thrown. In 1889 he proved his skill as an all around wrestler by defeating M. Ewans in three straight falls, Graeco-Roman, Cornish and catch-as-catch-can styles. Christol, Pierce, Benjamin and other well known antipodeans have since gone down before him.

Where Rochester Bicyclists Rest.

The recent meet of New York state division, League of American Wheelmen, held at Rochester under the auspices of Rochester Wheelmen's league put Rochester in the front rank as a home of bicyclists. The crack riders of the country, Berlo, Zimmerman, Windle, Murphy, [illegible], Lee, Kirk, Brinker and Heyland



LAKE VIEW BICYCLE CLUBHOUSE.

Smith were all present and participated in the racing contests. Windle and Murphy each broke a world's record. Rochester has a large number of clubs, and the most of them have handsome clubhouses.

The Lake View club was organized in July, 1887, and has a membership of 150. It is the largest club in the city, and its clubhouse is located in a beautiful section of Rochester. Dr. Sawers is president and [illegible] captain. The club list includes a number of fast riders.

Maher Wants to Fight.

Peter Maher, the Irish champion, wants to fight victorious Ted Pritchard for $1,000 and the English championship, but as there is more money and more glory for Ted in a fight with Bob Fitzsimmons in America, Peter will probably have to wait a bit.

Mrs. Barry Lake [illegible]

Mrs. Barry Lake [illegible] lecturer on the labor [illegible] gave a lecture on Organized Labor yesterday evening in the Christian church. There was a good sized audience, although the big church was far from being filled.

Mrs. Barry Lake [illegible] a strong speaker [illegible] hearers [illegible] [illegible] dience.

In the beginning of her [illegible] the speaker [illegible] [illegible] the principles [illegible] [illegible] society [illegible].

The three things that are necessary are [illegible] food [illegible] education and it is therefore necessary that men should band together to protect themselves as trades unions. But the organization that is merely protecting a craft is only lopping the branches while the roots are left. The Knights of Labor have attempted to go to the roots of the evil. Giving a brief description of this organization the speaker passed on to the selling of state lands to alien landlords.

The country's lands were taken by the legislators, she said, and handed to alien landlords to work from American toil the perpetuation of that aristocracy which they possessed. Those lands were stolen from the people, although the theft received the cloak of legislative enactment.

The United States, said the speaker, has its third house, the "house of lobbies," with corporations and money power ready to influence either side. The power of organizations has made itself felt in our legislative bodies, but the great trouble is that the labor organization is not among them. To find the root of this political evil the laboring classes should organize and put a spoke in the wheel of organized wealth, study the political situation, and keep the political tricksters from thinking for them. The financial affairs of this country passed from the hands of the people thirty years ago, when the war was started by those who hoped to see in such a time as civil war a market for their gold.

At the close of her address the speaker spoke upon woman's rights, saying: "If women are not fit to vote I'm willing to swear that all men are not fit to vote. You men say that the polls is not the place for women; aren't you ashamed of yourselves for making it in the past forty years such a dirty hole?" The speaker closed amid much applause.

After the lecture Miss Harrison spoke shortly about the value of kindergarten work, and invited those present to attend her lecture this afternoon.

Manitou.

Rev. C. H. Green, who has had a large and very interesting exhibition of relics, mummies and pictures of the houses of the Cliff Dwellers of the valleys of the Colorado river in this city all summer, leaves for Chicago to-day. This is the only complete collection of the kind ever taken west.

The Manitou public schools opened this week with an enrollment of 171.

The Journal will suspend the publication of the daily next Monday. The weekly will be issued every Saturday through the winter.

Captain Rogers, of the Sunny Side, gave his guests and friends a very pleasant hop Monday evening.

A large party of young people from the Cliff attended the hop at Broadmoor last evening, riding over on a special electric car.

Mr. H. H. Grafton, the genial postmaster, is suffering severe hemorrhages of the lungs.

Mr. Max Arnold, proprietor of the Revere house barber shop, has sold his business and leaves to-day for Kansas City.

The Manitou Postal Telegraph office has closed for the winter.

"A Midnight Bell."

The best and most entertaining emanation from the fertile and clever brain of Charles H. Hoyt is his play, "A Midnight Bell," which is not a musical farce of the "Trip to Chinatown" order, but is a genuine American comedy. It made a great success in this city last season, and it returns next Monday evening as the opening attraction of the regular season, with the same great cast and elaborate scenery which has characterized its [illegible] all over the country. "A Midnight Bell" is more pretentious in its dramatic claims than the several other pieces of Hoyt's that have frequently been presented here. In it he has succeeded in producing comedy by quite other methods than he used before, as the farcical features of his former plays are absent.

The Camp Meeting.

The grove where the Adventist camp meeting is located east of Colonel De La Vergne's is being thickly settled up with campers, there being nearly fifty tents already located.

The annual conference being held in connection with this meeting has called together representatives from all the principal places in the state. The meeting is now in full progress. The first meeting of the conference was held yesterday at 9 a. m., Elder J. R. Palmer of Fort Collins in the chair. The standing committees were appointed and the annual address of the president was delivered. At 11 o'clock Elder Matteson of Boulder spoke on the love and compassion of Christ. At 2:30 p. m. Professor Lewis of Union college, Lincoln, Neb., delivered an address on the subject of education. At 7:30 p. m. Elder [illegible] of Ohio spoke on the subject of redemption through Christ, showing that the purchase price had been paid and that we who have been purchased now belong to Him.

The time is all occupied from 6 a. m. to 9 p. m., there being three discourses each day besides various other meetings, including the business connected with the different societies of the denomination.

This morning at 10 Professor Lewis will speak again on the subject of education. The denomination has for several years had a number of colleges under its control but has just completed at Lincoln, Neb., a number of buildings [illegible] where the different nationalities will in their own languages be enabled to obtain a practical education. At 2:30 p. m. Elder States of Boulder will speak on Justification by Faith.

In the evening at 7:30 Elder [illegible] will speak following in the same line of thought as last evening, Redemption. All are made welcome.

The Agreeable Talker.

A man may know a great deal and not force you to confess that you know very little. He may select from his stores the gems and fragments likely to be welcome and mention them casually in reply to some question or remark made by one of his auditors. If you go to visit the collection of a geologist you don't care to see specimens of the primary, the secondary, the tertiary formations, with an abstruse lecture upon their birth, parentage and history; nor do you want to have chunks of old red sandstone flung at your head and find yourself slipping upon a moraine, but you do like to see the geodes filled with garnets or amethysts, the specimens of lapis lazuli and jade and malachite; you like to hear how diamonds are mined, and the comparative merits of the gold of Ophir and California. This is an open parable and commended to all men who know a great deal and wish to be counted as agreeable men.

THE GAZETTE.

WEDNESDAY, SEPTEMBER 9, 1891.

[illegible] in the [illegible] at [illegible] to-day.

Aldeman Finegan is laid up with a lame knee caused by the kick of a horse.

A marriage license was issued yesterday to Will J. Heath and Miss Martha Shatch, both of this city.

Two or three men were on the track at Broadmoor last night practicing for the foot races on Saturday.

Do not miss the gymkhana races at the Country club near the Casino on Friday, Sept. 11, at 2:30 p. m.

Colorado City is to have a fine circulating library supported by an association. Part of the books have arrived.

An interesting lecture will be held at the First Baptist church next Tuesday evening. The subject will be, "Cliff Dwellers."

The regular monthly meeting of the Colorado Springs Aid society will be held Saturday at 3 p. m. in room [illegible], bank building.

Special communication of El Paso lodge, No. 13, A. F. and A. M., to night at 8 o'clock sharp. All visiting brethren cordially invited to attend.

The rapid transit crossing in the middle of Tejon and Huerfano streets is being repaired. The travel across it had sunk it some inches, making a disagreeable bump for passengers.

The competitors entered for the sports at the Country Club on Saturday include nearly all the best local athletes, [illegible] representatives from Denver, Glenwood Springs and other points.

The regular convocation of Colorado Springs chapter No. 6, R. A. M., meets to-night in Masonic hall. Work on the mark master's degree. Visiting chapter Masons cordially invited to be present.

Harry McAllister returned on Sunday evening to Swarthmore college, Pennsylvania, to enter the senior class. After graduating next year he will enter the law school of Columbia college, New York city.

The gold medal prizes for the open race in the athletic sports at Broadmoor Saturday, Sept. 12, are on exhibition at Goodspeed's jewelry store on Pike's Peak avenue, next to the First National bank.

Among the entries for the Noah's Ark race in the coming athletic sports of the Country Club are included such small game as a calf, a rooster, a coyote, a pig and various other animals of racing proclivities. Owners up.

The bell of the First Baptist church in Colorado City, which weighs over 400 pounds, broke loose from its fastenings last Sunday morning while the [illegible] ringing it. It fell several feet and lodged among some rafters.

In the business locals Street commissioner Clark gives notice that he will send out an officer on September 20 to [illegible] the delinquent poll tax. People will [illegible] by calling on the city clerk and settling before that date.

Mr. S. Y. Case announces himself as a candidate for re-election to the office of constable of this precinct, subject to the action [illegible] by the Republican city primaries. Mr. Case has been very efficient while he has held the office and will have a good support.

[illegible] the [illegible] Mr. H. C. Barnum, who has a fruit store in Manitou, [illegible] kept his stock fresh by putting up the fruit that remained unsold in glass jars. He now has a large stock of these fruits which he offers at very low prices. His advertisement appears among the business locals.

Mr. H. S. Rogers, the city editor of The Gazette, left last evening for a vacation of a month among his many friends at his old home in Warsaw, Ills. During his absence Mr. C. A. Lyman, who was connected with The Gazette last winter, will look after the local news for the paper.

Coroner Marlow states that there will probably be nothing further done in the case of R. Hooper, who was poisoned in Crystal Park, as there is no money to aid an investigation. The county commissioners have offered no reward and the officers are not disposed to enter upon a wholly unprofitable search.

Hon. J. E. Reynolds and Mr. D. McShane, two prosperous Divide ranchmen, are circulating a subscription paper among the business men in this city to raise funds to aid in celebrating the "Potato Day" at Monument on September [illegible]. People are subscribing liberally and a fund of $150 or $200 will be raised [illegible].

[illegible] tickets for the opening of the new opera house Monday evening can be secured at the usual place to-morrow morning. There will not be any advance in price of admission. The carpenters have finished their contract and the house is now in the hands of the decorators who will be out by the end of the week. The work of placing the chairs began yesterday.

"Uncle" David McShane reports that work on the Lake Moraine dam will probably be completed in ten days. The lake was filling up so rapidly that the water had to be turned off so the work could be completed. There is a sheet of about fifty acres of water there now and the fishing would be good but for the continual firing by hunters in the vicinity which scares the trout.

One of the most interesting events of the gymkhana races which take place next Friday is the cigar and umbrella race. Each rider is given a red umbrella, cigar and matches. When the signal is given the cigar has to be lighted, which sometimes is not easy if the wind blows, the umbrella opened and the horse mounted, and the winner must arrive puffing his Havana and holding his umbrella open over his head.

The firm of Murdoch & Weaver, proprietors of the Midland eating house and lessees of the Hotel Ramona at Cascade and the new hotel at Woodland Park, have been in financial difficulty for some time owing to the backward season. Yesterday a number of attachments were gotten out and the firm made a bill of sale to Mr. J. G. Shields of the Shields-Morley Grocery company, which was their largest creditor. The liabilities are about $5,000, divided among the Shields-Morley company, Nichols & Long, Brigham & Herman, Smith & Gill, and J. F. [illegible]. The assets will probably cover all liabilities. A new company will be formed to carry on the business.

The hurdles on the Country club track will be in position to-day for those wishing to get in training for next Saturday's races.

Mrs. W. A. Ogden, who was injured in the collision on the Cheyenne line of the Rapid Transit company last Saturday, is recovering rapidly.

The Country club is planning to hold a great racing day some time next month. The occasion will be made of more than local interest, and the finest horses in the state will, if possible, be secured.

The race track at Broadmoor will soon be enlarged to a full half mile. At present the track is a little short of that distance, and the enlargement will be made by extending it to the south and making the south curves less short[illegible].

The most novel and attractive feature of next Saturday's sports at Broadmoor will be the pedestrian steeplechase. The distance is half a mile, finishing up with a deep and wide water jump which will be almost impossible to pass [illegible].

Mr. Ben Blanchard, a resident of Hutchison, Kan., well known in Manitou and this city, was brought into Justice Farrar's court yesterday afternoon on a charge of procuring $2,800 from Wheeler's bank on false representations. Some time last month he sent his wife to the bank with a check for the above amount on an eastern bank. The check was accepted, but when it was sent east to be cashed it was discovered that there was no such bank in existence as the check was made out upon, and the arrest was consequently made. Little was shown at the trial yesterday, and as Judge Harrison, the defendant's attorney allowed nothing to be brought up as evidence that the witnesses were not able to establish true beyond a doubt, the case was continued until to-morrow afternoon at 4 o'clock. It is probable that the whole matter arises on a misunderstanding and that Mr. Blanchard can prove his innocence.

An Evening With the Yankee.

The above is the subject of an entertainment [illegible] the public is [illegible] be treated. It will consist of a short lecture by Rev. J. B. Gregg, illustrated by readings from Lowell and other masters of Yankee literature. It will be made doubly interesting by Mr. Gregg's own inimitable rendering of the Yankee dialect. The time and place and other particulars will be given later.

[illegible] at the Country Club.

The Denver Athletic club, after making arrangements with the Country club of this city for a ball game, and after putting the latter club to considerable inconvenience in providing for their coming, dispatched a telegram yesterday morning which stated briefly that they were not to arrive. A picked nine was summoned to take the place of the Denver nine, however, and at 3 o'clock nearly 200 people were on the grounds to see the game, which, although not highly exciting, had some interesting features. The victory was won by the nine of the Country club in six innings. The nine included the following players:

Country Club.	Positions.	Picked Nine.
Rex	pitcher	E. Ostrom
Wooley	catcher	Woodruff
Waterman	first base	[illegible]
Fisher	[illegible]	[illegible]
[illegible]	second base	[illegible]
Scott	third [illegible]	Jamock
Caffe	center field	[illegible]
Evans	right field	Robbins

Score by innings:

Country Club	12	3	0	1	2	5—22
Picked Nine	4	2	0	2	4	4—16

DISTRICT COURT.

Lee Dolson Acquitted of Manslaughter in Killing A. P. Crowe.

The following business was transacted by the district court yesterday:

1352. The Ute Pass Paint Co. vs. A. Genthier. Hearing and judgment for plaintiff for $[illegible]. Attachment sustained.

1442. People vs. William H. Deitrick. Set for trial September 10, at 9:30 a. m.

1439.—People vs. Lee Dolson. L. H. Thompson, an attorney of Kansas, was admitted to practice for the purpose of assisting Mr. Vanatta in the defense of the case. The defense was charged with manslaughter in the killing of Alonzo P. Crowe at Colorado City in May last. The evidence was substantially as published at the time of the occurrence. The case went to the jury shortly after 5 o'clock. The jury was out but a few minutes when they returned a verdict of not guilty.

Court will meet at 9:30 this morning. Following are the trials set for to-day:

1428. People vs. John H. Hampton.

1431. People vs. James Burke, et al.

Allcock's plasters	18

Our Claret soda is the best offered for sale in this city, as hundreds of our customers will testify. Different complaints have been sent in to the City hall by the other soda water dealers, saying that as we had no license we ought to be stopped from selling it. Of course, you all know the reason they did it, for they don't like to have customers come in and say what fine soda Frank Dutton & Co. sell. We do not have to have a license, as we DO NOT sell liquors of any kind, but simply a pure syrup. Our formula will be given to all who ask for it, and if you never have tried it, ask for Claret soda.
